PHLF to Manage Meadowcroft Village

Meadowcroft Village in Avella, Pennsylvania is a rural grouping of 32 restored and reproduced buildings moved from their original locations throughout the United States and placed on 300 acres of farmland and reclaimed strip mining land. Delvin Miller, the king of harness racing and owner of the champion, Adios, created the Village with his brother, Albert Miller, and in 1969 opened Meadowcroft Village to the public.

The Village takes its name from Bancroft the Miller family farm, and Meadowlands, a farm owned by Delvin Miller. While boasting primarily log houses, the Village also features a covered bridge, an old school house, blacksmith's shop, general store, and a handsome collection of restored carriages and wagons.

In addition to his other activities on behalf of the Village, Delvin Miller holds two benefit golf tournaments each year to raise funds for Meadowcroft. This winter's tournament in DelRay Beach, Florida, included players from the Miami Dolphins and the New York Yankees. Albert Miller and his wife, Rita, are very active in the day-to-day operations of the Village.

PHLF has held tours and seminars at Meadowcroft in the past with a great response from our members. We are offering another tour to Meadowcroft Village this summer on July 28. Also, check the calendar of events for other special days at Meadowcroft. Call 322-1204 for more information.

PHLF members will receive a 50¢ discount on regular admission tickets upon presentation of a validated PHLF membership card.

PHLF has been named as management consultant for the 1979 season. Our activities include financial long range planning, programming, development of an extensive public relations campaign, as well as directing the activities of the present staff. The administration of rural living history museums is difficult; isolation and accessibility are two key obstacles which must be overcome. Because of PHLF's successful management experience record, we've been asked to help solve these basic problems and help find new sources of funding for Meadowcroft Village.

Braun House Demolition— End of an Era

Once again the wreckers have taken their toll. We are sorry to report the demolition this spring of one of the last great Edwardian houses of East Liberty: the Phipps-Braun house on Warwick Terrace. This document of one of Pittsburgh's grander eras, which sat on the hill above Fifth Avenue for 76 years will be replaced by luxury condominiums.

Built in 1903 by Lawrence Phipps, the steel, brick and terra cotta structure represented the type of provincial Italianate work commonly being done at the turn of the century. Because of the estimated $75,000. annual maintenance costs, PHLF could not accept the house as a gift from the last owner, but we did salvage all the decorative detailing we could. The artifacts retrieved included paneling, mantel pieces, portieres and curtains, painted leather wall coverings, stained glass, brass and bronze hardware, and even a Moorish smoking room! These will be incorporated in the Old Post Office Museum, Station Square, and Landmarks restoration projects.

Once the house was stripped, it was torn down to make way for the new condominiums. The developers plan a three-story 15-unit building to go on the site of the house and approximate its dimensions. Aside from the allegorical bronze fountain from the front terrace, which will be moved to a central atrium, remnants of the Phipps-Braun house have been cleared away.

Landmarks Certified

The Pittsburgh Athletic Association Clubhouse (1909-11) in Oakland, and the Carnegie Institute and Library (1895; 1904; 1974) in Oakland were recently added to the National Register of Historic Places.

The following buildings have been added to the Pennsylvania Inventory and will be considered for nomination to the National Register:

- Gilfillan Farm House, Upper St. Clair, 1857
- Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad Complex, South Side, 1895-1920.

PHLF's Historic Landmarks Plaque Awards Program continues to look for buildings of local significance. The Committee's next meeting will be in the fall of this year. Application forms are available from Eliza Smith at the PHLF office.

Easter Celebration at Old St. Luke's

St. Luke's Church in Woodville was the setting for a beautiful Easter Sunrise Service, the third annual ecumenical service sponsored by the Old St. Luke's Committee, an auxiliary of PHLF formed to raise funds to restore the historic stone church.

Built in 1852, the stones of this simple edifice were all quarried by hand by the men of the congregation. Included in the furnishings of the church is a pipe organ brought across the mountains by mule pack in 1823.

Participating in this year's service were Rev. Norman D. Drysdale, Rev. John N. Yohe, Brother George W. McCormick, Mrs. Joseph W. Lawrence, Mr. David Frankowski, and Miss Kathy Riggs. More than 100 supporters of St. Luke's enjoyed the Easter celebration service.

Manchester Site of National Conference

Over 100 people representing neighborhood organizations from throughout the country, architects, planners, government officials, historic preservationists and businessmen gathered in Manchester, April 6 and April 7 for the first national conference on historic preservation and the minority community.

The conference was sponsored by the Manchester Citizens Corporation in cooperation with PHLF, and the office of Historic Preservation, Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission and the Urban Redevelopment Authority of the City of Pittsburgh. Assisting in the conference were the Mt. Auburn Good Housing Foundation, Cincinnati, Ohio and the Society for the Preservation of Weeksville, Brooklyn, New York.

According to Stanley Lowe, Executive Director, Manchester Citizen's Corporation, "The Conference was designed to explore ways in which minority people can realize the benefits of historic preservation and to recognize the value of their inner city neighborhoods so that they will not experience the historic preservation movement as one more removal program."

Friday's Conference Agenda included three seminars, "Neighborhood Values", "Preservation Organizations, Government Funding and Consultants", and "Economics: The Role of Lenders, Developers, and Private Funding Sources." Conference sessions on Saturday focused on "The Function of Design in a Preservation Neighborhood" and "Packaging Housing Developments for Historic Preservation."

The seminars featured speakers from Massachusetts, Washington, D.C., Ohio, Tennessee, Georgia, North Carolina, Alabama, Wisconsin and California. The speakers described their restoration experiences, related how to package housing plans so that city officials, bankers and others needed for support will buy the plans and told how to generate community interest.

Mr. Edward Weintraub, State Historic Preservation Officer, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, one of the Conference sponsors and speaker noted, "We are delighted to participate in this important event. Displacement of existing residents in historic neighborhoods is one of the major issues of the historic preservation movement today."

He went on, "We are holding this conference in Pittsburgh because this city has been a leader in using historic preservation as an anti-displacement tool. Programs like the Manchester Program have shown that in fact historic preservation can be a means of rebuilding neighborhoods and neighborhood pride."

"The experience of the men and women speaking at this conference shows us that displacement need not occur and that historic preservation can be a vital force in preserving neighborhoods for existing residents," he said.

Friday evening 200 conference participants, Manchester residents and city officials journeyed by trolley across the Smithfield Street Bridge to attend a reception and dinner at the Freight House at Station Square. Despite record low temperatures the crowd enjoyed a keynote address presented by Wallace Green, Deputy Under Secretary, Department of the Interior and entertainment provided by Walt Maddox.

All Conference sessions were held in Manchester. Friday's sessions took place at the New Zion Baptist Church and Saturday seminars occurred at Bidwell Church. Following the seminars, conference participants enjoyed tours of Manchester and the Mexican War Streets.

The Conference opened Thursday evening with a presentation by Mr. Ron Suber, President, Manchester Citizens Corporation and PHLF Board Member. Arthur P. Ziegler, Jr., President, PHLF also discussed the development of the Manchester Program, the first urban renewal program based on historic preservation in the United States and the marketing program developed by PHLF and the Manchester Citizens Corporation.

During the closing session of the Conference the group agreed to a three-point plan. First, a smaller group will meet in Pittsburgh this spring to continue planning for uniting minorities in an effort to save their historic neighborhoods without being forced out by wealthy buyers. Then conferees plan to lobby at the National Trust for Historic Preservation Convention this fall in San Francisco. Finally, another conference will be held in Cincinnati next year to continue to explore the possibility of forming a new organization.

Panelists Joseph Bell, Carver Bank, Savannah, Georgia; Aubrey Howard, Howard-Doyen Associates, Memphis, Tenn.; and Earl Horde, Dollar Savings Bank, Pgh. Pa. discuss the economics of restoration at Friday's Seminar on Economics.

Conference participants from around the nation enjoy a presentation; the session took place at New Zion Baptist Church in Manchester.

A walking tour of Manchester included a visit to Thomas Mistick's elegantly restored house on Pennsylvania Avenue.

Stanley Lowe, Executive Director, Manchester Citizen's Corp. describes the Manchester Program on a walking tour of Manchester.

Friday evening, a special streetcar carried conference participants from the William Penn to Station Square for dinner at the Freight House.

1898 Panhard Levassor Donated To Old Post Office Museum

On April 4, 1979, the Old Post Office Museum became the proud recipient of one of the first automobiles in the City of Pittsburgh. It is an 1898 Panhard-Levassor, a gift of William P. Snyder, III. This sporty red French automobile with a "Tumble home body and rear entrance Tonneau" was brought to Pittsburgh by the gentleman in the photograph above, Mr. H. J. Heinz.

It is driven by a 2 cylinder, 4 horsepower Phenix-Daimler engine with a progressive sliding transmission and double chain drive.

We are most grateful to Mr. Snyder for this exquisitely restored vehicle, which was given the A.A.A.A. award of 1935.

We invite you to see this exciting piece of Pittsburgh's past at the Old Post Office Museum. We are open weekdays 10-4:30; Saturday & Sunday 1-4:30; closed Mondays.

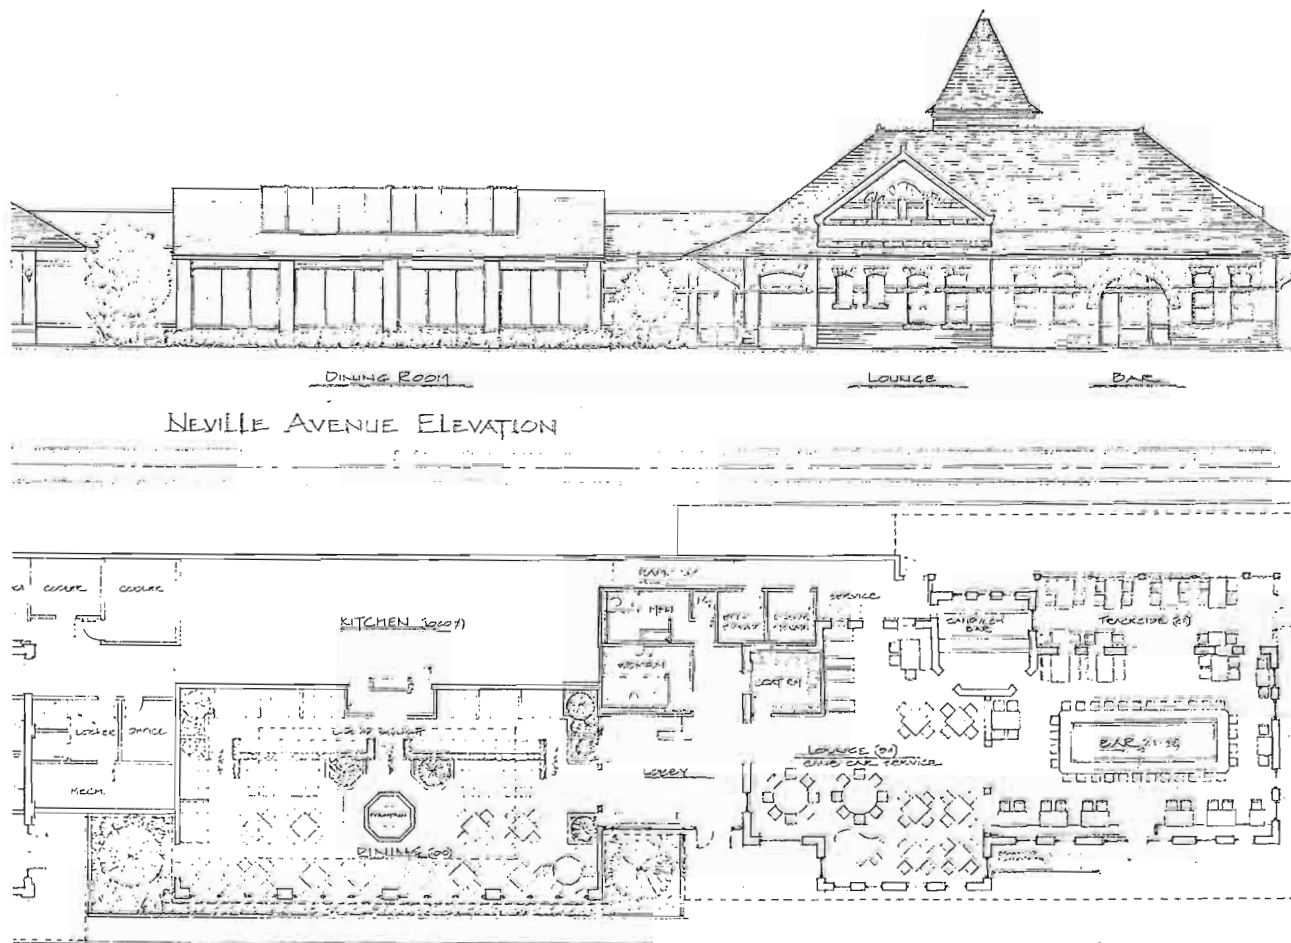

Coraopolis Cuisine: In Search of a Restaurateur

PHLF has recently undertaken a feasibility study on restoring the P&LE station and adjacent freight house in Coraopolis, built between 1895 and 1898 by Shepley, Rutan and Coolidge, the successor architectural firm to that of H.H. Richardson, designer of the Allegheny County Court house. Success of this recycling project is a key ingredient in the borough's economic revitalization because of its location near the center of Mill St.

PHLF has completed its initial studies of possible conversion of the structure to an elegant restaurant, and upon review is quite encouraged.

Structural studies indicate that the building is sound. We have on a schematic basis, designed a 114 seat restaurant and 54 seat lounge, representing 5,210 total square feet. The total project budget for acquisition, site improvements, parking, furnishings, equipment, and basic construction and renovation totals approximately $900,000. Alternate plans for a larger restaurant and a banquet hall are also available.

With the guidance of Coraopolis officials and entrepreneurs familiar with this market, we have completed economic analyses. The analysis includes attainable sales projections and a corresponding income statement for a representative operating year.

It appears from these pro formas that with the available funding from HUD through the Coraopolis Economic Revitalization Corporation, in the amount of $325,000 the project is indeed feasible.

However, a restaurant developer must be located and committed before these public monies can be sprung. We are currently negotiating with a few prospective developers and are very interested in meeting with any other interested individuals and organizations.

PRESERVATION WEEK

MAY 6-12, 1979

PRESERVATION IS GOOD BUSINESS

Looking For Landmarks: Survey 1979

PHLF needs volunteers to assist in undertaking a four-year, comprehensive county-wide survey of Allegheny County, intended to expand upon the work done by Jamie Van Trump and Arthur Ziegler for Landmark Architecture of Allegheny County, published in 1967. The project will involve traveling the city streets and country roads of the county, locating and recording the historic resources in our built environment. The survey will be expanded to include all of the following:

- architecture
- public sculpture
- landscaping (parks, gardens, etc.)
- historic sites
- engineering
- technology
- industry
- urban and town planning

Using a cut-off date of 1940, we will explore the county in geographic segments. Phase I (1979) will deal with the City of Pittsburgh between and north of the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers.

The data collected in this Survey can be incorporated into statewide comprehensive preservation planning and local comprehensive planning. Also out of this, historic districts will be defined and candidates chosen for landmark certification under the PHLF Historic Landmarks Plaque program, the Pennsylvania Inventory of Historic Places, and the National Register of Historic Places. The final product of the four-year project will be a significant new publication of LAAC.

Members and friends of PHLF can participate in the survey in two ways:

1. Alert us to any districts, buildings, monuments, sites or objects with which you are familiar, and provide us with any information you might have concerning them. We have been compiling a file of suggestions for future surveys since LAAC was published in 1967, and would like to continue to collect recommendations from our members. Use the short sample survey form below to record the information and mail it to us.
2. We need volunteers to help with both field work and research. More specifically, we need drivers, photographers, researchers, and typists to work beginning in May. A brief training program will be conducted to familiarize the volunteer survey team with the historical background of the area, available research resources, and survey techniques.

Fill out the card below or call Eliza Smith at 322-1204 immediately if you are interested in being part of the Survey team.

Please join us in this important project in whatever way you can!
